

A LITTLE

..SHOE TALK..

We are just about to enter the bad, wet weather of winter, and a little short piece of shoe advice, free gratis for nothing won't cost anybody anything, and may possibly do some one a little good.

Now and then in the dry summer months a cheap shoe may, by careful use be made to give fairly good service, but the test of our Kentucky winter weather is too severe for anything except the very best of solid leather shoes to stand. If there is a weak spot any where in a shoe, wet weather will certainly find it out. If the counters are paper, or the insoles are paper, or the heels are paper, one day in a rain will tell the tale, whereas the shoe might have, by care, worn a couple months in dry weather.

If a shoe has spongy soles or flakey uppers, one day's wet weather will tell the tale, and your feet will be wet before you have been out an hour.

Now our advice, in view of the above facts and in the light of twenty years experience is, "don't buy cheap shoes at all, but if you will have them, buy them in the summer time, but never in the winter."

Call for the best and insist upon getting it, wherever you are trading, and our word for it, you'll spend less money for shoes than you have been spending.

Of course to get the best shoes, any little girl or boy in the public schools will tell you, you'll have to get Anderson's.

DROPPED DEAD.

Well Known Lady Dies Very Suddenly

Expired Without Warning After Retiring to Her Room.

Mrs. Bobbie K. Bronaugh, a widow living on Sixth Street, died very suddenly of heart disease at her home Wednesday night about nine o'clock.

She was apparently in her usual health and was on the streets during the day. Some members of the family had been out to church and upon their return Mrs. Bronaugh went up stairs to another room to renew the fire, which was about out. She took a lamp in her hand, which was placed upon a table and those below heard a heavy fall. Running up stairs Mrs. Bronaugh was found lying in front of the grate unconscious and in a dying condition. She expired in a very few minutes. She evidently dropped dead from heart disease. No one was in the room with her at the time.

She was about 65 years old. The funeral services will take place to-day.

LOST THREE FINGERS.

Little Alvin Clark Sustains a Painful Accident.

Alvin Clark, a carrier boy of the New Era, had three fingers of his right hand crushed off by a job press yesterday afternoon, at the New Era office. Rupert Wilson was running the press and the little boy was waiting for the paper to come out.

In some way he placed his hand on the machinery and the accident occurred. He is a son of Mrs. Lizzie Means Clark and is 11 years old. Dr. Stites dressed the fingers, which were cut off at the second joints.

GREAT LUCK.

Christian County Hunting Club
Meeting With Much Success.

The Christian County Hunting Club are having fine sport in Arkansas this season. So say letters received from some of the members. Game of all kinds is plentiful and geese, ducks, squirrels, partridges, etc., are bagged almost without number. Several deer had also been slain up to Tuesday and the hunt is not yet over.

Capt. S. R. White, of Julien, killed an immense buck and his happiness knows no bounds.

CASES COMPROMISED.

Defendant Paid 20 per cent. of Judgment and Matter Settled.

The case of J. H. Spurlin, charged with bastardy, was compromised in County Court Wednesday. At the last term of Circuit Court a verdict for $1,000 damages was returned against Spurlin on a charge of seduction under promise of marriage, and this was included in the compromise, defendant paying $200 and the costs, and the matter was dismissed.

Mrs. Ware and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pattin and her brother, Frank Pattin, will leave in a few days for Cuba, where they will make their future home.

STRIKE A FAILURE.

Miners Refuse To Obey Orders
To Quit.

The Union Officers Still Trying To Call The Men Out.

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 28.—The latest claim of the mine workers is that the Mines of the Sebree Coal Company, located at Sebree, will not be able to run to-morrow unless the company agrees to work union men. The miners' union officials are jubilant, and are telling those who call at headquarters that it will only be a short time until every mine in the district will be closed down unless the operators agree to recognize the union.

Few concessions, however, are known to have been made to the ranks of the men now employed in Hopkins county. The mine workers officials claimed that a number of men employed at the mines of the Monarch Company had quit and joined the union. The Courier-Journal representative saw four of the men who had brought their tools and asked if they had come out through sympathy with the union. Their answer was: "We just quit."

The operators are as confident as ever and say the Mine Workers' Union will never succeed in organizing the miners of Hopkins county. Oak Hill mines, located at Nortonville, had a full force at work to-day, so the manager reports. This is the mine President Woods said would not work to-day.

The Courier-Journal representative visited the mines of the St. Bernard Coal Company at Earlington, but could find no union men there. The men at this place seem to be well satisfied, and the casual observer would be apt to remark that the chances for organizing the men here are very slim.

HAND BADLY CUT.

L. & N. Engineer Fleets With Painful Accident in Nashville.

Mr. S. R. Hackney, of this city, engineer on the Hopkinsville and Nashville accommodation, got one of his hands badly cut Wednesday. He was adjusting some part of the engine machinery when his hand was caught and the palm split open. He was unable to make his run back to this city, and another engineer had to bring the train in. Mr. Hackney returned here Wednesday night and will not resume his place for several days.

PRIZING FOR DELIVERY.

Weed Being Shaped Up For The Market Here.

While there is considerable activity being displayed among the tobacco men very little of the weed has yet been prized for delivery, but the prospects are good for receipts to greatly increase from now on, as the weather for the past ten days has been fine for prizing tobacco in order to handle.

Loose dealers have already made many purchases and considerable of the unprized article has been brought into the city. Prices being paid are proving very satisfactory and some real good tobacco is commanding extra figures.

A DECOROUS DEATH

By Emile Zola.

COUNT DE VERTEUIL is 50 years of age. His blood runs in the count's veins. His family is one of the most ancient in France. Yellow gold lies in the count's coffers. His fortune is one of the largest in France. Honors are heaped upon the count's head. He is a member of the Academy, a deputé, a painter of the arts.

Countess Mathilde de Verteuil, 36, Blanche in Count Mathilde—blonde and beautiful. Age does not wither her. Her rounded shoulders, her satiny skin, her golden hair, her starry eyes—all these make the matronly beauty of the countess the envy of younger rivals.

The Verteuil household is a thoroughly respectable one. Dame Rumer, the count's mother, was concerned in it. The countage was as eminent for good taste, said the world—both wealthy, both of good family. And then they had lived as husband and wife for nearly six years. And their two children—Ferdinand, in the army, and Blanche—had been so well brought up. And they had married Blanche very well, in the sentimental husband and wife. But what of that? If each has a separate suite in the Verteuil abode, do they not treat each other with the utmost courtesy? They are perfect models of deportment, and nothing can be said against either.

One night madame the countess returns from a ball at two o'clock. She is fatigued, for Mathilde, as her maid, disappears, she says:

"The count, madame, is somewhat unwell this evening."

The count yawns. "Ah," she murmurs. Then, as she extends her form beneath the luxurious coverlet: "Wake me at ten to-morrow, Julie. The modiste is coming."

At breakfast the next morning the count does not appear. Madame is concerned. She goes to inquire of the health. The count is dissolved; he presents his excuses to madame, but he cannot quit his chamber. Madame is more concerned. She will herself see the count. She enters. She finds him in bed, extremely pale, but extremely trim. He is a perfectly respectable individual. The room shows no vulgar signs of disorder; no viols scattered around, no furniture misplaced. Three physicians are whispering in a corner, and two well-trained domestics move noiselessly about the room. This is no common invalid—it is my lord the count of Verteuil who lies abed. This is not your low-down fellow's "sickness"—it is illness, trim and proper and cere- monious illness which is here.

"You are unwell, I see, my dear," says the countess. "I hope it is nothing dangerous?"

The count smiles feebly—a somewhat strained smile.

"Not at all," he answers, with an effort. "All I need is rest and quiet. We have now to put you to so much trouble."

"Are you going to the seaside this month, my dear?"

"No, not until August. We start tomorrow for our country place, and—well, as I was saying, the letter fell into his hands, and he took the cause of the count. But it was only a scratch, the merest scratch in the world. I dined with him that evening at the club, and he won twenty-five."

"Yes, I believe the meeting of stockholders takes place to-morrow, and they want to make me a director. I don't know whether I will accept or not. I have not buy now, madame."

Scrunch, scrunch! The carriages have quitted the road and are on the gravelled walks of the cemetery. The talking ceases. The tomb of the Verteuils is at the extreme left—a magnificent marble structure, where carven angels in paroxysms of agony are supporting the head of the Verteuils. The coffin is placed before it, and the funeral discourse begins.

"Better, I hope, to-day, my dear?"

"A little better. I think, my dear Mathilde."

"If you wish it, my dear, I will stay with you."

"Thank you, but it is unnecessary. It would only fatigue you needlessly. You are very much, nevertheless."

They understand each other perfectly. They have lived apart. The count would like to apart. He enjoys a certain bitter egotism in thus quitting life alone, without the comedy of sorrow being played at his bedside. And he will die with a dignity which the count, as should a man of the world.

Such is the crowd that it is difficult for those on the outskirts to catch all the words. An elderly gentleman, with his hand to his heart, is listening, with pensive eyes, to the elegy. He catches these words:

"...the qualities of his great and generous heart, his bountiful—"

"Yes," he mutters, "I knew him. He was a clever hypocrite."

The sound waves from this mingle with those of the passing carriages, and the count, a man who had made a study of political economy and sociology, a man whose loss was irreparable.

Such is the crowd that it is difficult for those on the outskirts to catch all the words. An elderly gentleman, with his hand to his heart, is listening, with pensive eyes, to the elegy. He catches these words:

"...and—he better—not—to get out this evening, my dear—I am—not—very—well."

The count is considerate even in his weakness. He would spare her the gossip of the world, were she seen abroad the night he died. The countess appreciated his courtesy. She was a physician.

The physicians remain in the sick man's chamber. The countess sends for the children, Blanche and Ferdinand, and the three install themselves by the count's bedside. Now the forms are completed—with the count dead, but he struggles to repress himself. He would avoid a convulsive, vulgar death-scene. He stifles his rattling death-bell. And, when he finds himself going, he turns to his wife and children and kisses them. The domestics are much moved. And then he turns his face to the wall. When his wife would speak to him, he motions her from him with a feeble gesture. There is no movement in the form with its face against the wall. One of the physicians leans toward it.

"All is over," he says, as he closes the dead man's eyes.

Count de Verteuil has died, as he wished, alone.

The morning of the funeral the Verteuil manor is filled with sorrowing friends. The son and son-in-law are the most prominent in the count's suite. Yellow gold lies in the count's coffers. His fortune is one of the largest in France. Honors are heaped upon the count's head. He is a member of the Academy, a deputé, a painter of the arts.

Countess Mathilde de Verteuil, 36, Blanche in Count Mathilde—blonde and beautiful. Age does not wither her. Her rounded shoulders, her satiny skin, her golden hair, her starry eyes—all these make the matronly beauty of the countess the envy of younger rivals.

The procession sets out for the church. The hearse is magnificently somber; black-plumed, black-draped, its hangings edged with silver; and the pall-bearers, too, are magnificent in their way—a duke, a field-marshall, a prime minister and an academician. The horses are gilded, black-created and black-coated, that pass slowly through the streets, while the busy passers-by stop and uncover.

And the countess? Well, she is completely broken down with grief, say the relatives. The countess is at home. At the church the ceremony lasts for nearly two hours. The organ thunders forth its lamentations, the singers in the choir, white-robed torches held by boys the green flames cast a sickly glow over the gathering.

"Is not Faure, the celebrated tenor, going to sing to-day?" asks one mourner of another.

"Yes," says mourner No. 2, an elderly man, who has just been staring through a single eyeglass at a pretty mourner, he believes he is. Ah, that is his voice now. What method? What range! Eh?"

"Yes," says mourner No. 1, "Never heard him sing better in my life. Ah, it's a pity poor Verteuil can't hear him, ain't it? He was very fond of him."

It is a beautiful June day. And as the carriages roll along the route for the cemetery, the windings of the road take the hearse out of sight from time to time, therefore it is not to be won-

THE STADIUM.

Greatest Year in Athletics at Pan-American Exposition.

During the Exposition of 1901 at Buffalo the greatest athletic sporting carnival that ever took place in America will be held. For the purpose of this grand carnival the largest sporting arena ever erected in America is to be built. It is to be known as the Stadium and will cover nearly ten acres, having a seating capacity of 12,000. It will be supplied with numerous entrances and broad aisles, so that the comfort of the spectators will be assured. The large space beneath the seats will be used for exhibits, being the equivalent of a very large building. The arena will contain a quarter mile of running track, and space for various pageants and exhibitions of live stock, automobiles, farm and road machinery, vehicles, etc. At the western end of the Stadium is a large ornamental building, which forms the main entrance to this grand arena.

THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION

The Pan-American Exposition will be held in Buffalo, the city of the most complete and diversified precedents in many particulars. One of the most important features of the Exposition is the court settings are of first importance. In order that there may be abundant room for the elaborate decorative effects, 33 acres are alone devoted to courts. This area is two and a half times the area of the courts at the Chicago Columbian Exposition. About these are to be placed various nations and exhibits from all parts of the world are to be displayed.

As a second important feature may be mentioned the ornate architecture, the use of plastic ornamentation of very intricate and beautiful design and the employment of original sculptured groups in the various buildings, entrances and architectural features. No less than 125 original sculptured groups, modeled by some 30 or more distinguished American sculptors, will be used in this feature of the decorative work.

The use of an elaborate color scheme has never before been attempted at an exposition. The architectural title of "Rainbow City" has already been applied to this great group of brilliantly colored buildings, and lovers of color will find the exquisite harmony of tint that has here been produced a most delightful subject for contemplation and study.

As a third point of superiority may be mentioned the hydraulic and fountain features. In all the courts are broad pools containing numberless cascades and fountains. These will add to the beauty of the great work in no small degree. Many of the fine sculptures will form a part of these charming fountains. A broad and stately esplanade, 1000 feet long, with a double row of young trees, completely encircles the main group of buildings.

The horticultural embellishment of the grounds constitutes a fifth point of excellence. Ornamental trees, shrubs, lawns and flowers of brilliant hue will

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Will be Represented by a Fine Building and Exhibit at Buffalo.

The Argentine Republic will have a building and exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo next summer which will represent the political, social, economic and industrial prosperity of that South American republic. The sum of $30,000 has been appropriated by the Argentine government for this purpose.

Argentine merchants, and especially those of Buenos Ayres, appreciate the importance of representation at the Pan-American Exposition, and the Argentine government is making every effort to send exhibits. The Argentine government will have its exhibit at the Paris exposition brought to Buffalo at the close of the French fair.

BUFFALO'S Mayor and the Exposition.

The Hon. Conrad Diehl, mayor of Buffalo, the home of the Pan-American Exposition, has great faith in the success of the enterprise and is more than pleased with the progress that is being made on the work of construction.

Diehl says: "I frequently drive out there, and over the past few months the progress is phenomenal, the rapidity with which the work is carried forward.

The men who are directing the Exposition affairs are shrewd calculators, and they are going to make this enterprise the wonder of the world. Outsiders are becoming enthusiastic over it. Thousands of people who did not go to the World's fair at Chicago will come to the Pan-American. Let every body prepare to receive them and give them a good time."

MARK BENNETT.

Manitoba and the Exposition.

The Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo will be a representative exhibit from the important province of Manitoba. Special Commissioner Henderson, who has made a tour of northwestern Canada for the Exposition, met with gratifying success in arousing interest in the enterprise.

Oregon Editors Will Go to Buffalo.

The death of Commissioner of Internal Revenue Wilson of West Virginia, has made an unexpected opening and Mr. Jno. W. Yerkes is being pushed for the place by the Kentucky Republicans. It would be too bad for the "nicest gentleman in the party" to be sent to Washington, leaving Kentucky with no Republican statesmen grading above Deacon and Bradley.

A delegation of Pembroke people opposed to the recent turnpike propositions, will visit the city to-morrow for the purpose of conferring with the turnpike advocates. It is understood that a number of Pembroke's leading business men are in favor of accepting the result of the election without litigation, since the proposition, in dispute would surely pass again next year. The conference will be awaited with interest.

The Christmas number Scribner's Magazine shows three different kinds of color-printing. The cover is an elaborate design by Maxfield Parrish, which it has taken nine printings to reproduce. The frontispiece is a delicate reproduction in color of a painting of a mother and child by Jessie Wilcox Smith, and in the body of the magazine, in a very illuminating article by the distinguished art critic, John La Farge, on "Puis de Chavannes," are six full-page pictures of some famous decorative paintings by Puis. These have been most faithfully reproduced in the colors of the originals.

Shortly before his term expired Gov. Bradley reorganized the Louisville Legion on a partisan basis, violating the law by mustering in the regiment over the protest of the county judge. In order to put the Legion on a legal footing, Gov. Beckham has ordered the entire regiment mustered out and a new regiment will be at once recruited. Lieut. Col. Jouett Henry has been ordered to Louisville as recruiting officer. Arrangements have been made for the presence of 18 companies of militia at Frankfort to participate in the usual parade at the inauguration of Gov. Beckham, Dec. 11. These companies will come from the Second and Third regiments, and will also include the Louisville and Lexington batteries. Company D., of this city, will be one of the companies to attend the inauguration.

The human body has been compared to a temple and the potter urges us to keep it entire and clean. To accomplish this end, every nook and cranny must be soothed and garnished. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Coughs Kill

We know of nothing better than a cold, dry air and the lining of your throat and lungs. Only keep up and you will succeed in reducing your weight, losing your appetite, bringing on a slow fever, and making everything exactly right for the growth of consumption.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

kills coughs of every kind. A 25c. bottle will do right for an ordinary cough; but for the hard, chronic bronchitis you will need a 50c. bottle; and for the coughs of consumption, the one dollar size is most economical.

"My cough reduced me to a mere skeleton. I tried many remedies, but all failed to give me any relief. Finally I immediately began to improve, and believe I owe my life to this health. The Rev. J. F. MORAN, Brownsville, Va.

BAGGING BIG GAME.

Grace Hunting Club Having Excellent Sport in Arkansas.

From letters received from members of the Gracey Hunting Club now in Arkansas the boys are evidently having fine sport and are bagging big game. The rain in that state was not so heavy as in Kentucky and there has not been a day, probably, since the boys left that could not be termed an ideal one for hunting on White river, where they are in camp. At last accounts J. J. Reed, W. M. Hancock and Lock Humphries had each brought down a deer and all of the members of the club who went on the hunt this season have had good shooting. Besides deer, many geese, ducks, quail and squirrels have been bagged. The health of the crowd has been good and a royal time is being experienced.

ISLE OF PINES

Will Remain in the United States' Possession.

The United States will retain possession of the Isle of Pines, whatever the final disposition of Cuba, says a Washington dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser. It will be fortified and a strong garrison will be kept there.

Lying south of the western end of Cuba, the Isle of Pines commands the western or Yucatan entrance to the gulf and forms an important outpost for the defense of the Nicaragua Canal.

White Secretary Root visited Cuba, he went to the island and recognized its strategic importance. The State Department now holds that under the treaty of peace the Isle of Pines passed to the United States. Secretary Root holds a similar view.

The northern side of the island, that next to the Cuban shores, is admirably adapted for the purpose of the Government. It is high, thickly studded with valuable woods and the climate is so healthful that prior to the war a health resort for pulmonary patients was established there.

Naval officers say that Siguencia Bay, on the northwest coast, will with little dredging, afford an excellent and safe harbor.

GENUINE STRONG MAN.

Canadian Athlete Trundles 300 Bricks, Weighing 1200 Pounds, in a Heavy Wheelbarrow.

Joseph N. Fountain, who was born in Quebec, Canada, but has been a bricklayer and plasterer in Webster, Mass., for some years, has considerable standing as a strong man. One of his most remarkable feats was the wheeling of a load of 300 dry, well-made brick, weighing a little more than 1200 pounds when the weight of the wheelbarrow is counted, a distance of 100 feet. An ordinary wheelbarrow load is 55 or 60.

The feat was performed on a wager. Somebody said it could not be done; somebody else said it could be done. The man who claimed that the trick could be turned asked Fountain's opinion. Fountain said he thought it could be done, and so it was.

DECEMBER WEATHER.

Many Storms With a Sweeping Cold Wave Predicted.

Following is a summary of the character of the weather for December, as figured out by Hicks.

Storms of rain, with thunder and lightning will set in about Dec. 3. These storms will reach their culminating crisis about 5th or 6th and will be followed by much colder. From 8th to 11th look for storms of rain and snow. The reactionary storm period, central on the 13th to 16th, will bring sleet and snow, winding up with blizzardous gales and change to great cold.

From the 17th to the 23rd will bring a great crisis in winter weather. An extremely high barometer, high north winds and a great cold wave will come on the heels of these great storms. The south should count on much rain, some tropical thunder storms, and a good share of the snow, sleet and cold following.

And touching the 25th, 26th and 27th, look for return to stormy conditions, and change to warmer, and more rain and snow.
